THE INTERIM GOVERNMENT OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF AMBAZONIA ANNOUNCES ITS INSTITUTIONAL RECONSTITUTION AND TRANSITION TO THE AMBAZONIA PEOPLE'S LIBERATION AUTHORITY (APLA)

A historic institutional transition from an interim governmental structure to a unified liberation authority.

The Interim Government (IG) of the Federal Republic of Ambazonia today announces its institutional reconstitution and transition to the Ambazonia People's Liberation Authority (APLA), marking a historic milestone in the institutional evolution of the Ambazonian national movement.

Since its establishment in 2017, the Interim Government has served as the principal political, mobilization, and administrative authority of the Ambazonia struggle for self-determination. Following nearly a decade of sustained resistance, diplomatic engagement, and evolving political realities, the movement has reached a stage where its institutional structure must reflect both the maturity of the liberation struggle and the responsibilities of its next phase.

The transition to the Ambazonia People's Liberation Authority (APLA) signifies more than a change of nomenclature. It marks the evolution of the national movement from an interim governmental structure to a unified liberation authority dedicated to advancing the collective aspirations of the people of Ambazonia. The new designation affirms the sovereignty of the people, the continuity of the liberation struggle, and the exercise of organized institutional authority in pursuit of freedom, national coordination, and international engagement.

The institutional reconstitution reaffirms the Ambazonian national movement's enduring commitment to the inalienable right of the people of Ambazonia to external self-determination, as affirmed in Article 1(2) of the Charter of the United Nations, Article 1 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and United Nations General Assembly Resolution 1514 (XV). It marks the institutional maturation of the liberation struggle, strengthening the movement's capacity to advance its national aspirations through a more coherent, coordinated, and enduring institutional authority while preserving the legal, political, and historical continuity of its mission.

The institutional transition shall be implemented in accordance with the approved Transition Document and the accompanying Constitutional and Institutional Framework, which together establish the legal foundations, institutional structure, guiding principles, and operational direction of the Ambazonia People's Liberation Authority (APLA). The transition shall take effect immediately upon completion of the implementation phase.

The Interim Government further affirms that this institutional reconstitution is undertaken in the spirit of strengthening unity among the Ambazonian people and supporting all sincere efforts directed toward greater national cohesion, coordinated action, and the collective realization of the people's right to self-determination. The Ambazonia People's Liberation Authority is conceived as a unifying institutional platform through which the people of Ambazonia may continue to advance their national aspirations with renewed purpose, coherence, and collective resolve.
